Celebrating Ten Years of Farm Crisis Network

An article from Country Way magazine

Farm Crisis Network (FCN) is a UK network of groups of volunteers drawn from the farming community and rural churches. FCN volunteers are there to 'walk with' and support farming people and families as they seek to resolve their problems, whatever they may be.

This year is ten years since FCN helped its first case and since then FCN has helped many thousands of farming people and their families through difficult and distressing times. FCN is celebrating its 10th anniversary by holding a number of events and services of thanksgiving across the UK, through out the year, and to which you would be very welcome!

This is a time for thanking God for His provision through the first ten years of FCN's ministry and also an opportunity to pray for our farming community. 2005 marks the start of the new Single Payment Scheme for farmers, one of the biggest changes in agriculture for decades. This comes when many farmers are still struggling to recover from a prolonged period of low farm incomes and other problems. Major change is always difficult, bringing strain and anxiety and FCN wants all in the farming community to know that it will continue to provide help and support through this stressful and uncertain time. FCN wants to stand with the farming community as they go through this challenging time and invites you to stand with them too. Please pray for FCN and its volunteers and for the farming community they serve.

If you would like more information about the work of FCN, if you are interested in helping FCN in its work or would like to support it financially then please contact the FCN office on 01788 510866 or email mail@fcn.org.uk
